

UUCOP February 2018 Newsletter

February Greetings,

Things are going smoothly at UUCOP lately. Better not say that too loudly for fear of jinxing things!

Our program schedule is filling up nicely with interesting speakers, musicians, story tellers and poets. You will be seeing Seamus Norgaard, Mary Agria and Deb Hansen leading services this year and we are working to make arrangements with other outside speakers as well. If you have a speaker in mind for us, we would love to hear about it. We are always looking for new ideas.

Can you host our annual Freedom Picnic in July? We are looking for a spot to enjoy our potluck picnic lunch, comradery and maybe some impromptu music from our talented members. Please let us know if you have any ideas for our picnic on July 1.

A new sign will be greeting you as you enter the Chapel building one of these days soon. We've been working with our landlord Colleen to have UUCOP and its hours shown on the new sign that will be installed in the doorway area of the Chapel. This will be up all the time and advertising our presence at the Chapel.

Are you a member of our social justice email list? We have been getting some interesting and important things to share. If you would like to receive infrequent social justice information on a wide variety of topics, just send an email to Joe Palm at jrpetoskey@gmail.com

Please keep Mary James and Roger Srigley in your thoughts as Mary heals from a broken wrist and Roger undergoes some surgery. We wish them each a speedy and easy recovery.

Onward to March (and Springtime)! See you in church, Kim
